Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 01 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine and dry.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry for most with long clear spells. Turning chilly, with a frost for parts of the north and west. Cloudier across eastern England and also northern Scotland, where are few spots of rain are possible.

Friday:
Dry with plenty of sunshine for most, though patchy cloud affecting eastern parts. Feeling warm in the sunshine, especially in the west, but a chilly breeze in the east.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Fine Saturday after the clearance of fog and frost. A band of rain will then sweeps south Sunday, clearing Monday. Much colder air, with hail and snow showers, follows.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.